Celebrating people with disability in the workforce

Frappes and milkshakes will be on the house next week at Multicap.

As part of BuyAbility's 'Our Work in Action Week', disability support service provider Multicap is inviting the public to drop in for a free drink, morning tea or brekky.

From 30 October to 5 November 2017, disability enterprises across Australia will host events that give people the opportunity to see their work in action and support employment for people with disability.

Multicap's Chief Operations Officer Seth Grantley said Multicap employed more than 90 people with disability across its social enterprises.

"We are dedicated to giving people with disability the opportunity to have paid employment, greater independence and to learn new and transferable skills," he said.

"Our Work in Action Week gives people with disability the opportunity to show their work to their local community and for the community to support that work."

Multicap will celebrate BuyAbility's 'Our Work in Action Week' with events across six locations:
